

Joplin Daily Globe
17 Mar 1898 5/4

JAMES WESTFALL KILLED

Fell a Distance of 45 feet in a Shaft on the Last Chance.

Yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock James Westfall, of Webb City, while en route to work, slipped on the slope of the Last Chance mine in North Carterville, and was precipitated to the bottom of a shaft a distance of at least 45 feet. He struck on his head and death was instantaneous. His body was taken to his home and Coroner Whiteley was sent for.

Mr. Westfield was 60 years of age. He leaves a wife and several daughters. He was an old resident, a man of exemplary habits and was highly esteemed by the public.