

Bonville Weekly Advertiser,

19 January 1910

A. W. McFarland, an old and highly esteemed citizen of Cooper County, died Sunday morning last January 9th, at his home, five miles south of Boonville.

AN OLD CITIZEN DEAD

A. W. McFarland, an old and highly esteemed citizen of Cooper county, died Sunday morning last January 9th, at his home, five miles south of Boonville.

The deceased was born in Cooper county near where he died on September 15, 1835, and with the exception of a few years has lived there all his long and useful life. He was married on December 7, 1857, to Miss Catharine Hurt, of this county, who with three children survive him: W. J. McFarland, Mrs. Terrell Mills and Mrs. R. B. Johnson, all of this county. He also leaves eight grand children and three great grand children.

The remains were brought to Boonville on Tuesday morning, and the funeral preached at the Presbyterian church by Rev. J. W. Mitchell, of Marshall. The interment took place in the Walnut Grove cemetery, the remains being followed by a large concourse of friends and neighbors.

The deceased was born in Cooper county near where he died on September 15, 1835, and with the exception of a few years, has lived there all his long and useful life. He was married on December 7, 1857, to Miss Catharine Hurt, of this county, who with three children survive him: W. J. McFarland, Mrs. Terrell Mills and Mrs. R. B. Johnson, all of this county. He also leaves eight grand children and three great-grandchildren.

The remains were brought to Boonville on Tuesday morning, and the funeral preached at the Presbyterian church by Rev. J. W. Mitchell, of Marshall. The interment took place in the Walnut Grove cemetery, the remains being followed by a large concourse of friends and neighbors.