Howard and Chariton Counties, by Smith and Gehrig, 1923

Pages 70 - 115

The first five counties of Missouri were: St. Charles, St. Louis, St. Genevieve, Cape Girardeau, and New Madrid.

March 6, 1820--Missouri contained fifteen organized counties.

Howard County was organized by an act of the General Assembly, Jan. 13, 1816, and in force from March 1, 1816.

Howard County originally comprised all northwest Missouri and portions of southern Iowa. It presented an area of nearly 22,000 square miles, and it was one-third as large as the present state of Missouri, and much larger than several of the New England states.

By an act of Legislature, on Feb. 16, 1825, Howard County was reduced to its present limits.

Howard County now embraces 463 square miles, instead of 22,000 as it laid out in 1816. It is rather irregular in shape about one-half of it lying in a great bend of the Missouri River, Glasgow being at the northwest and Rocheport at the southeast corners, with Fayette at the center.

The white man in his migration westward halted here and formed the earliest extensive settlements in central Missouri. It was known far and wide as the "Boonslick Country", a name originating in the fact that two of the sons of Daniel Boone, Nathan and Daniel, Jr. in 1807 evaporated "lick" water and thus manufactured salt for domestic purposes.

The circuit court sitting as a county court, divided Howard County in 1816 into four townships, to wit: Moniteau, Boone Femme, Chariton, and La Mine naming them after certain streams of water. But when the first county court was organized five years later and held its first session at Old Franklin Feb. 26, 1821, the county was divided into seven townships which were named Boonslick, Franklin, Richmond, Chariton, Prairie Moniteau, and Bonne Femme. Burton Township was organized in 1880 from territory taken out of Bonne Femme, Prairie, and Richmond Townships.

In 1817 Franklin became the county seat of Howard County, being chosen by Benjamin Estill, David Jones, David Kincaid, William Head, and Stephen Cole, commissioners appointed for that purpose by the General Assembly of Missouri.

The town of Fayette was laid out in 1823 and named for the illustrious French compatriot, Lafayette, who made his first visit to America in 1824. The county seat was at this time changed from Franklin to Fayette. The first cour-house in Fayette was built in 1824.

North and South Moniteau Townships---The townships of Howard County began as early as 1812. About this period Price Arnold located on section 23, township 49, range 15, having come from Mercer County, Ky. The next year he took up another claim and was joined by William Head of Washington County, Va. When the War of 1812 was declared and the western Indians became hostile, these two settlers erected a stronghold for the defense of themselves and their neighbors and called it Fort Head. A few of those who were with them were: James Pipes, William Pipes, Joseph Austin, Perrin Cooley, Peter Creson, and Harry Lenons.

During the years from 1817 to 1823 there came from Kentucky and Virginia and settled around Fort Head: George Pipes, John Gray, Ephraim Thompson, James Hollum, Pleasant Pipes, Soloman and Zacchaeus Barnett, Gerard Robinson, Waddy Curran, Thomas Tipton, and Federal Walker.

History of Northeast Missouri
Volume I, 1913, Pages 350-353

Col. Benjamin Cooper, Kentucky, moved to Howard County in 1808.

Daniel Boone visited the Boon's Lick Country about 1795.

The first authentic record of a permanent settlement to be made in Howard County was in 1800, when Joseph Marie sold and deeded a tract of land to Asa Morgan.

Most of the emigrants who came to the Boon's Lick Country were former citizens of Madison County, Ky.: The Coopers, Hancocks, Berrys, Browns, Thorps, Jones, Woods, Bynums, and many others.

Among the famous men who lived in Howard County is Kit Carson. He was born in Madison County, Ky., in 1809, and was brought by his father, Lindsey Carson, to the Boon's Lick Country in 1810.
