PLATTE COUNTY, MISSOURI

Immediately after ratification in February, 1838, of the treaty known as the "Platte Purchase", the land which became Platte County was settled rapidly. Paxton says in his history of the county that would-be settlers gathered in Clay and Clinton Counties and dashed for the new territory as soon as the notice of ratification was announced. "Jackson, Lafayette, Boone and Howard counties sent contingents, but Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee sent thousands." By the time the 1850 census was taken, large numbers of families had also moved to Platte from Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania, as well as from the southern states. One history states that at the close of 1836, there were probably not more than a dozen white men in the territory, as it was Indian reservation. The 1850 census shows a population of 16,845 persons.

Members of many Platte County families went on to the west and southwest, and many wagon trains were organized in Platte County.

NOTES AND SUGGESTIONS

The families in this census have been copied in the same order as given in the original census. The number at the beginning of each household is the one which was assigned by the census taker as the household number. This is one of the few Missouri census records for 1850 which named the townships. Please note that a new set of numbers begins with each township or town, and in referring to the census, one should be sure to designate the township, as well as the household number. There are 2490 dwellings in this census, with a total of almost 17000 persons.

It is often helpful to note names of families near those in which one is especially interested as they may be relatives or old neighbors. Early settlers often moved in groups. Sometimes former neighbors and relatives followed later after hearing reports from their friends.

The names in this census may not always be spelled as they are today. Often they were spelled according to the way they sounded to the person recording. Sometimes an "e" or an "s" was dropped at the end of a name, or added. Sometimes names of members of the same family are spelled differently. It is suggested that all possible spellings be checked. Some names may not have been interpreted correctly by the compiler, as sometimes the handwriting was difficult to read, but an effort was made to verify all names by checking against other lists, marriage records, old histories, etc., but the original spelling was retained.

It will be noted that the census taker often abbreviated given names, such as "Eliz'h" for Elizabeth, "Cath'n" for Catherine, "Marg't" for Margaret, "Sam'l" for Samuel, and these abbreviations have been used here.

The census taker seems to have repeated some households, with slightly different information, depending on the person who gave the information. And it looks as though sometimes a name which stands alone may have been omitted from a household and inserted later in the record.
