Out in life's garden where sympathy grew,
God planted a soul—'twas the soul o' you—
Life's wonderful garden—love seeking went thru
Till he found a heart—'twas the heart o' you. . . .
I have sought thru life's garden of roses and rue
And I find one sweet blossom, all jeweled with dew,
Love, sympathy, Faith—all unchanging and true
Are the heart of my flower—
dear Mother,—'tis you. **
