Feb 27 - Roland Farrell has been quite poorly for several days.
 Jan 16, 1924 - Roland Farrell, 23 y, Sp Ed Farrell NW of town, has been dangerously ill the past wk of kidney trouble, some better 1st of wk but in a precarious condition. Jan 30, 1924. Lowman Ck. Roland Farrell, who has been sick for sometime, is improving slowly.

J. L. Quigley, veteran hunter & trapper NW of here, was at the Democrat ofc last wk to get a hunter's license blank filled out.

Mr. Q. stated that he & son, Everett, had recently taken 3 foxes, whose pelts are worth $10 to $12 ea.

asked how he got them - whether by trapping or hunting, he stated he always hunted them.

The art of hunting them is one he developed himself after yrs of study of the habits of his fox quarry.

Mr. Q. states that in sleeping a fox curls up like a dog in a bunch of grass & puts his nose straight up in the air to catch any scent of an enemy. A fox's hearing is also remarkably acute & ordinary hunters make too much noise walking. The brushing of clothes on twigs or corn stalks tells Mr. Fox his enemy is nr, & he is off.

The Q. depend on stalking this game in a noiseless manner & have been quite successful. The tracks are followed after a snow.

Very few foxes are taken abt here now & the Q. prob get more than other hunters.
